

When Shaun Corey's 'new life' in London turned sour and his controlling and manipulative girlfriend brutally murdered him she told a string of lies in court to try to deflect the blame.

The judge and jury were quick to see through her claims and she was sentenced to life with a minimum of 17 years. His family asked Catherine Smyth Media for help to clear his name from the vicious allegations she had made.

The story made the front page of the Rossendale Free Press was used in the Rochdale Observer and is printed in full on About My Area

Thank you to Liz Henson Photography for the picture.